READ IT AND PROFIT BY IT LIKELY IT APPLIES TO YOU.

It is the Clear Cut, Ringing Statement of a Man of High Standing in the Community in Which He Has Lived for Many Years. It is the Story of a Wretched, Miserable Existence Transformed Into a Life of Health and Happiness.

Here is the story of a man who suffered for years, whose life was made miserable. His trouble unfitted him for business. He sought relief, but could find none. At last he discovered that there was a place in this big city where his disease was successfully treated. He went there and got almost instant relief, and in four months he was thoroughly cured! He had no more pain of the head, throat and stomach—a common complaint with thousands upon thousands. Let them read his story and profit by it. Here is in his own words:

MR. WILLIAM M. GUTOW.

"My name is William M. Gutow, I live at number 88 South Third avenue in Mount Vernon. For years I suffered from catarrh of the head, throat and stomach. I sought relief, but found none until January 21, 1893. I placed myself under the treatment of Doctors McCoy and Snow. One by one they skillfully grappled with my diseases, and after four months' treatment their efforts were crowned with success.

"I AM THOROUGHLY CURED."

"Not only to show my gratitude to these physicians for rescuing me from a most wretched existence and restoring me my lost health, do I give this statement, but also for the benefit of my fellow-sufferers. Let me say to those afflicted: If your disease is curable place yourself in the hands of Doctors McCoy and Snow and you will be most certainly cured."

GOOD FROM BAD SPECULATION.

Financial Ingenuity Turns a Serious Disaster Into Success.

The man with the cough was telling his experiences in business, says the Buffalo Express. "It's funny," he remarked, "but there's hardly a thing that can't be handled to good advantage."

If a mangoes about it right. Now once I met a fellow with a recipe for making a patent stove blacking. It was just like anything, and put a lot of money into it. We made up few thousand gross before we tried to sell it, we were so confident of its going well. When we came to put it on the market we found that the blamed stuff wouldn't sell. I spent all the money I could get, and was crying for a way to go, but it was no use. The people simply wouldn't have it, and that was all there was to it. After about six months I was broke. My partner had skipped, and I was left with 400,000 boxes of stove blacking on my hands. I was in a bad way at the time, and did not look very nice."

"Pull out all right?" asked the man with the tall hat.
"I did."
"In what way?"
"I remembered that Sam Patch said that some things can be done as well as others, and I borrowed a little money and made a fortune out of it."
"How?" asked the man with the tall hat. Interestingly.
"Sent it over to Liberia and gold ever last box of it for face-powder."

THE OLDEST DRESS.

It Belonged to a Japanese Empress of the Thirteenth Century.

The oldest dress in the world is probably that described by a French traveller in Japan, says the Washington Post. It belonged to the Empress of Japan who had lived in the thirteenth century, and it had been kept all the centuries in a temple near Yokohama, where the priests sometimes exhibit it for a small reward.

It is kept in an old coffer, and it is shrouded in white silk. The robes, for there are seven of them, are described as a diaphanous mass, crumbling at the edges with decay.

The material is crape or some flimsy

It is made with a long train, pagod sleeves are a high collar like a Medicus cuff. The upper layer was once whitened and is now the color of ivory, embroidered with flying birds the size of emblems with dragons heads, green, blue and violet.

Then come seven layers of the silks: muslin, yellow, blue, violet, old gold and green, on which seem scattered strange animals, all in flight. The seventh layer, which touches the body of the long dress, is violet, embroidered with figures like phantoms.

The embroidery on this wonderful robe is said to be as transparent as gauze. The effect of the whole is smoke-colored.
